CLASS POEM

LIFE'S MILL

The mills of the centuries grind slowly,
Turned by the power wheel of time.
We are in the hopper of this grist mill,
Whose stones cut very fine.

Beneath the stone each kernel's cut,
And driven from its shell,
Each into finer texture drawn,
Refined through screening well.

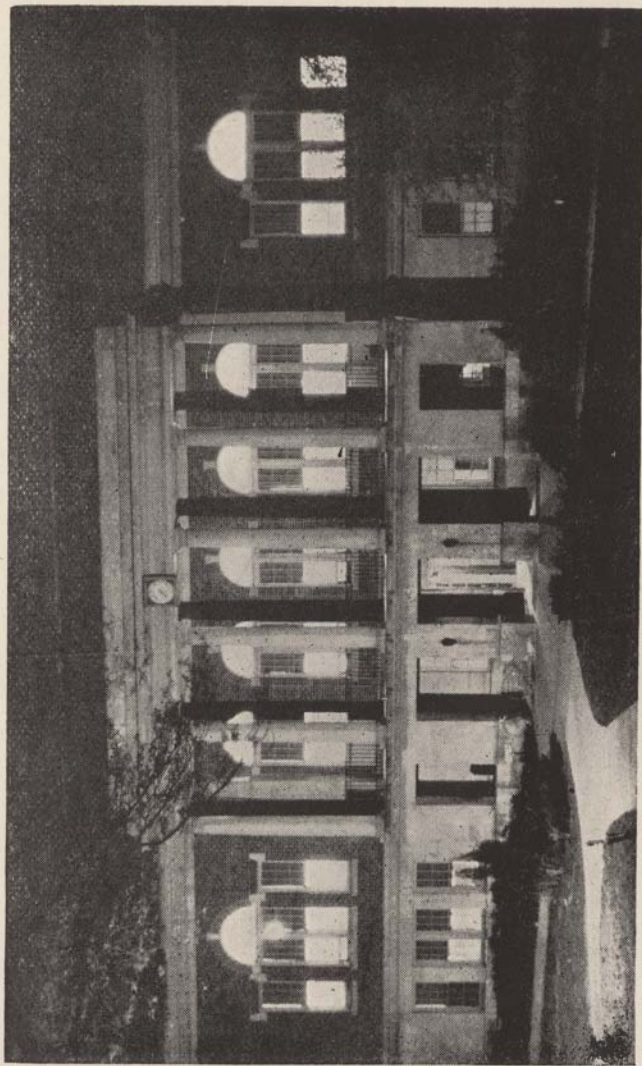

Here is the meal not chafe,
The essence of human endeavor.
This is the cream of the crop zestfully flavored
Through intelligent fervor.

None can determine the product,
The grains in life shall make,
But 'tis on life's screen, labor siene,
One determines the worth of the mill.

We all pass through life's grist mill
On ages rugged trail,
A price we paid to fill our cup
From youth eternal flail.
Our vanishing lauders fill.

Come up, upon the hopper and watch the revolving stones.
Then glance at "time's" slow power wheel
Turning! Turning!
Through the centuries alone.

MR. G. TROY JETER.
